Man Found Slugged On Railroad Track May Die

HENRY HAIRSTON FOUND IN UNCONSCIOUS STATE

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL IN TEMPLE WITH HEAD CRUSHED FROM BLOW.

Mystery surrounding the assault and serious wounding of Henry Hairston who was found in the Santa Fe railroad yards at an early hour Monday morning, has not been solved. Mr. Hairston is car repair man for the Santa Fe.

Hairston was found by employees of the railroad yards in Cameron at an early hour Sunday lying near the main line track, his head crushed as from a blow and with wounds about his face. His shoes and a part of his clothing were found nearby.

He was unconscious when found. Sheriff Blaylock was summoned and made an investigation. Hairston was picked up and placed on the north bound train and taken to the Santa Fe hospital at Temple.

At first Sheriff Blaylock advanced the theory that robbers might have attacked the man along the dark stretch of track, crushed his skull and left him lying without aid for several hours. Another theory is advanced that he was struck by a passing train but his presence there at that hour of the night has not been accounted for.

Hairston is 51 years old and a brother of Dick Hairston, county commissioner from Milano. He has been employed by the Santa Fe for a number of years.

Information at the sheriff's office is that investigation is being made and every possible clue traced to find some reason for the mysterious attack and to fix the responsibility.

NEW BATTE OIL MILL IS UNDER CONSTRUCTION

MODERN MILL TO COST $250,000 AND WILL BE READY NEXT SEASON.

Work on the great seed house adjoining the R. L. Batte Oil Mill is progressing rapidly.

J. L. Barmore, contractor for the concrete and cement work, is to finish his portion of the work in a few days and the walls of the big building will go up. This building will have a tremendous floor space and will be completed in advance of the oil mill on account of the necessity for seed storage.

Mr. Batte will not finish the mill in time for operation this season as there will be little cotton seed on account of the crop decline. All seed purchased here will be shipped to the mill at Thordale.

The new oil mill will be one of the finest in this section of Texas, a great asset to Cameron and of sufficient capacity to serve the big territory.

BATTE GIN NO. TWO IS READY TO GO.

The No. 2 Batte cotton gin one of the most modern gin plants in Central Texas is now ready for ginning cotton and in another section of the Herald this week announcement is made to the farmers.

Last season the gin plant was overhauled and new gin stands with cleaners installed and with other similar equipment the gin is considered one of the finest in this section.

Mr. Batte prides the gin in the quality of sample it turns out and the general good results obtained by the farmers who patronize it. Notwithstanding the fact that the crop is short this year the service at this gin has been greatly improved and stands ready to serve the farmers.

Alton Baggett, Kathleen Baggett and Mrs. W. C. Baggett will spend a few days visiting relatives in Waco.

Water Pipes Taken

J. T. Parma reports that the water pipes used for the tourist park have been removed and now tourists have to pack water.

Not a very good way to treat our tourists is the comment heard on this matter. Efforts to secure a light for the park has also been unavailing.

CAVING HALTS DRILL IN DEEP TEST WELLS

HUGHES AND SIMS DEEP TESTS NEAR JONES PRAIRIE DOWN 1200 FEET.

Caving at twelve hundred feet was reported to have halted drilling for a day or two this week on the Hughes and Simms deep test wells near Jones Prairie.

The wells are reported down about 1200 feet. Clay was being hauled Tuesday to prevent caving so that full speed drilling could be resumed. Aside from the Magnolia test at Rockdale these wells are commanding the interest of the people and of oil men. Water is being pumped 9 miles from the river to the Simms well and other difficulties are being overcome in the drilling campaign.

Big blocks of acreage in these areas are to be developed within a few months giving a thorough test to this favored structure.

SAVE ON YOUR ICE BILL; DRAW WATER WHEN NIGHT COOLS.

Saving in ice bills may be effected according to C. W. Lawrence of the Cameron Water, Power & Light Co. if water is drawn at night. Experiments have proven that the temperature of the water is lowered during the night at least 25 per cent.

It takes less ice to cool water drawn at night after the terrific heat of the day has been dispelled by the night. Some of the customers have reduced their ice bills considerably in this way.

R. J. LONG IS MANAGER GASOLINE DISTRIBUTION

TAKES OVER LOCAL TERRITORY FOR OWENS REFINING COMPANY.

R. J. Long of Waco will become distribution manager for the Owens Refining Company in Cameron and all parts of Milam county except the city of Rockdale.

Mr. Long will take charge of the sale and distribution of Owens Refining Company Gasoline and petroleum products on August 1. The position held by Mr. Long is similar to that held by district salesman for other oil companies.

Mr. Long has a family and will move here in a short time. He will purchase a home and become a permanent citizen of the town.

Before taking the distribution of the gasoline products for the Owens Refining Company he was with Sanger Brothers in Waco. Prior to that time he was in business at Eddy. In 1911 he came to Texas from California. Mr. Jones is a business man of recognized ability and numbers his friends by the thousands throughout the country.

Mr. Long is a Shriner and a member of the Knights of Pythias. He was master of the Masonic lodge at Eddy before going to Waco. He is a member of the Episcopal church.

The distribution of Owens Refining Co., products will receive the undivided attention of Mr. Long and with his record and business career he will be welcomed to Cameron and Milam county.

DISPOSAL PLANT NOW READY FOR OPERATION

ACHIEVEMENT FOR SANITATION IS ESTIMATE OF PLANT HERE.

Completion of the sewage disposal plant is announced and within a few days the plant will be in operation.

The completion of this plant is regarded the most important factor in sanitary development in recent years.

Agitation for this plant began two years ago. In 1923 bonds in the sum of $25,000 were voted for the plant but on account of the condition of the security market the bonds were not readily sold.

Ideal weather has prevailed for the construction of the plant and its building has been unhampered by rains. The plant is located near the river, is modern in every way and will meet all state sanitary requirements.

W. T. Carter is spending a few days at College Station to attend a meeting during the short course. Mr. Carter is scheduled for an address on "The soil survey and its use by the Experiment Station worker." Mr. Carter is in charge of the soil survey work in Milam county.

Store Account $31; Will Harper Proves Value of Diversification

To Will Harper of Jones Prairie this county goes the praise for the best effort at diversification for the year 1925.

Mr. Harper, who owns over 300 acres of land came to town Saturday, went to his merchant and inquired the amount due for supplies on the farm. He was told that $31 represented the indebtedness. Mr. Harper drew a check for the amount and declared the debt represented the entire amount of money due by him for supplies on the farm after he had deducted the amount received through sale of produce and other farm products.

Mr. Harper has resided in the Jones Prairie community for many years. This year he has sold two bales of cotton to date. When he began on the farm he plowed with a yoke of oxen, a famous old pair of steers whose horns measured 7 feet

Cotton Coming In

Thirty-two bales of cotton had been ginned in Cameron up to Thursday afternoon.

Eight bales were ginned at the Weems gin Thursday. Most of this cotton is coming to Cameron from Jones Prairie where most of the cotton will be produced this year.

200,000 ACRES OF LAND UNDER LEASE IN MILAM

TEXAS COMPANY PAYS $40 PER ACRE FOR WILDCAT ACREAGE.

More than 200,000 acres of land is now under lease in Milam county, according to records compiled by John B. Henderson of the Milam County Abstract Company. The records show that there are approximately one million acres of land in Milam county.

According to information gained through reliable sources here Monday the Sun Oil Company purchased from Con Issacs of Rockdale one hundred acres in lease and paid $25 per acre. On another section of the same tract which is in the vicinity of the Kime wildcat well of the Magnolia Petroleum Company south of Rockdale, it is reported that $40 per acre has been paid by the Texas Company.

So far this is the highest price reported here for wildcat leases on which no drilling is in progress. On the Kime tract where the Magnolia wildcat has a showing of oil in the Edwards Lime at about 3900 feet, it is said the Magnolia Petroleum Co. has paid to Mrs. Kime about $40,000 in lease money and for the purchase of royalty.

The lands leased in Milam county lie southwest and northwest through the county. About 800,000 acres remain unleased but are not considered on structure. The land lies in the sandy land section of the county where land is said to have a market value of about $12 or $15 per acre average. In all there are about 100 producing wells in the Rockdale and Minerva fields with a rapid development of the shallow field at the town of Rockdale.

The development program is looked upon as sure relief from the stricken agricultural situation.

FELIX MATULA BACK AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Felix Matula who has been absent from his business for several months is back in Cameron and is reported improved in health. His many friends will be glad to know he has returned.

PIERCE SAYS DROUTH WIDESPREAD OVER STATE

NAVASOTA AND CAMERON MERCHANTS BACK FROM TRIP TO NORTH TEXAS.

Louis S. Pierce of Navasota passed through Cameron Tuesday on his way home from a trip to North Texas.

Mr. Pierce owns a store in Cameron and one at Navasota and recently established a store in Kingsville.

He says that crop conditions in the valley are not as good as reports indicate and that a large section of that country is in but slightly better condition than Milam county.

In East Texas Mr. Pierce says the crops are fine but he fears that in West Texas the drouth will cut down the production. The cotton report as given by the government does not reflect the true condition of the crop. It will be short several million bales this year, Mr. Pierce says and some advance may be expected in cotton goods.

COMMERCIAL CLUB WILL PROMOTE TRADES DAY

MERCHANTS WOULD STIMULATE BUSINESS BY BARGAIN DAYS.

A trades day to be preceded by trade trips to the Cameron territory is to be sponsored by the Commercial Club if the merchants will co-operate.

At the meeting Monday night a committee was named to make the plans for the trades day and report back to the club at the Monday night meeting. Last year the club staged a number of trade trips to the communities surrounding Cameron and trade was encouraged.

If the trades day is established it will be held one day each month at which time merchants will offer special inducements for the people.

It is pointed out by the business men here that during the drouth conditions that business is slack and may be revived by proper trade efforts.

WEEMS GIN READY FOR GINNING CROP.

The Weems gin one of the largest and most modern cotton gin plants in Central Texas, is ready for the ginning season and has already ginned 12 bales of cotton.

While the production this year will be very small the gin plant has been placed in readiness for the crop and the farmers may be assured of the best of service.

During the summer months the gin is overhauled and new equipment added each year. The gin stands are equipped with every modern device for giving a good turn out and sample and Mr. Weems prides his gin in the results obtained.

S. W. CHEEVES NOW IN MCKINNEY WITH STORE.

S. W. Cheeves has been in McKinney for the past two months with the Cheeves Bros. dry goods store there. Mr. Cheeves has large mercantile interests there and at other places in Texas. It is reported that crop conditions are good there with the prospect of a good yield this year. Mr. Cheeves is expected to return to Cameron in a short time.

The formal opening of the club will be celebrated shortly after August 1.

FERGUSON SAYS ROAD WORK WILL GO ON

FUNDS WILL BE AVAILABLE IN SHORT TIME COMMITTEE IS TOLD.

On account of insufficient funds at this time reconstruction of 55 miles of designated state highways with inverted penetration, a treatment of asphalt, has been halted in Milam county.

The work of resurfacing highways throughout the state has been stopped temporarily on account of funds not available at this time.

Gov. James E. Ferguson in conference Wednesday at Temple with a delegation of Milam county citizens composed of A. F. Mitchell, Sam Hefley, J. B. White and A. E. Smith, told the committee that while the work has been stopped temporarily, he feels certain that it will be resumed within a short time, or as soon as the funds are available.

The highway department inherited from the preceding administration large mileage contracts for maintenance and with the fulfillment of a major part of them the new work cannot be completed at this time.

The former Governor told the committee that the state would give every possible assistance in building a link in the Sap Highway near Burlington. Specifications have been requested of A. F. Mitchell, county engineer.

The topping of asphalt begun on the highway at Burlington will be constructed to the city. The work has been ordered stopped beginning on August 1.

The original designation of 55 miles in Milam county and the plan of expenditure of $225,000 will be carried out in due time, said the former governor who in company with chairman Lanham of the Highway Commission was in Temple Wednesday.

FEW TRANSFERS ARE MADE FROM SCHOOL

FAILURE OF REGISTRATION MAY SAVE OLD GRAMMAR SCHOOL FROM ABANDONMENT.

Although no figures are available at this time it is understood that comparatively few transfers were made to the superintendent by scholastics in the division of the city allotted to the old grammar school.

The board made transfers possible for those who desire to attend the new grammar school in north Cameron in passing a resolution dividing the territory. Transfer opportunity closed in July 15.

Superintendent Fisher has been away on vacation for several weeks and no figures can be obtained but it is understood that only a very few children have been transferred.

With the inclination thus expressed by the people it will be necessary for the board to make suitable improvements at the old grammar school to take care of the usual number of scholastics, although in restricting the use of the building to a small section of the primary grades the school is doomed to limited use and can never function as an important factor in the school system unless the policy of the board is changed.

As soon as the figures are available on the number of transfers are made they will be published.

SOKOLS ARE ASKED TO GIVE PROGRAM IN CAMERON PARK SOON.

Paul Webb, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and J. B. White Tuesday afternoon presented an invitation to the Sokol union at Backholts to come to Cameron and give a program of gymnastics.

The Chamber of Commerce extend the invitation and it is probable that the Sokols under Prof. Havranek will visit Cameron in a short time for an all day program in the park.

The Sokols And Their Achievements

By J. J. Zmrhal.

"Tell us something practical—tell us of something that actually works," that is the modern cry everywhere. So I am going to tell of something today that has worked. Do you remember the days immediately after America, in self-defense, entered the World War on the side of the Allies? Do you remember the first call for volunteers? Do you remember how we all gloried in those faithful sons of ours who were the first to offer themselves as defenders of the Old Glory? Do you still feel the thrill that ran through us when we saw the loyal men rallying to Old Glory? And does not your breath heave with pride and gratitude even now when you think of it all? Of course it does! None of us has forgotten, all of us are blest with the memory of our heroes, who willingly, out of pure love of freedom and Democracy offered their all. We feel secure while we have men like that, we know that "the government for the people" will not perish from the face of the earth.

I speak of this because the Sokols of whom I am now to speak to you had a lion's share in the noble work done during the trying days of the world's war. They were among the first to rally around the Flag. They did not wait until they were conscripted. Sixty thousand strong they marched to be enrolled as defenders of Freedom. Sixty thousand of the total one million Czechoslovak people living in the United States, men, women and children—full six per cent. At this rate Uncle Sam should have had six million volunteers—at least twice as much as were drafted under the conscription law during the whole period of the war.

But the Sokols were not active in America only. On the Russian and Serbian battlefields they deserted the colors of the tyrants and joined the ranks of those who wanted to make the world safe for Democracy. In Russia, after long expostulations and endless difficulties placed in their way by czarist bureaucrats, they were at last allowed to organize their own army, under their own colors. And when czarism collapsed and the Soviets usurped the power, they fought this new menace to democracy just as effectively, with a manly determination which makes a glorious page in the history of the world. Many were able to cross over from Russia to France and there performed feats of heroism; thousands strengthened the allies' lines and helped them to snatch victory from defeat. They shortened the war—shortened suffering, bloodshed and helped to preserve the government of the people wherever it had a chance. They helped to establish it in the country of their birth. What they did during the days of the revolution forms an interesting chapter by itself.

Due largely to their great moral influence, the Czechoslovak revolution (October 28, 1918) became the famous bloodless revolution. It ended the ancient Austro-Hungarian Empire, destroyed all its instruments of oppression and tyranny and yet did not sacrifice one single life! During the trying first days of the Czechoslovak Republic, the Sokols—the "National Defense," as they are often called, though they are not a military organization—were a steady, stabilizing influence. The Nation knew they could be relied upon in any crisis and the destructive influences such as the extreme reds and radicals—were afraid to show their heads.

In Czechoslovakia there are over half a million active members—a formidable army of well trained, high minded, devoted men and women, able to cope with almost any situation. Since the beginning of the Bohemian Renaissance the Sokol organizations have been the torch bearers of the national progress. They trained, they enlightened the masses, they carried the national idea into the furthestmost corners of the land until the Sokol idea was identified with the highest aspirations of the nation. The winged motto, "Every Czech a Sokol!" like the "Sokol"—(the falcon)—flew from house-top to house-top. It would be hard to find a Czechoslovak settlement where the Sokols are not known.

Moreover, the sokols were the greatest promoters of true democracy. Among them all titles were dropped—everyone was just plain "brother" equal to the richest, most educated or titled. Every good Czech—be he an apprentice, a mechanic, or a high official, could become a member upon taking an oath to lead an honorable life, and to support the Sokol teachings and discipline. If anything promoted brotherly feeling, the sense of inner worth, self-respect, and sense of equality; if there was any organization in which the truly human qualities were emphasized, it was among the Sokols. The Sokol Idea is a cure for many modern ills; laziness, physical and mental; disease, physical, mental and moral, including ennui, the root of most of the evils in an age of prosperity. I know of no constructive agency that is more effective and far reaching in its results than the Sokols. I have yet to find the man or woman who entered the Sokol organization and failed to become a useful and efficient member of his community, and who has not benefited physically, morally and mentally by being an active member of this admirable organization.

The Sokol idea has its roots in the self-evident truth that a nation without strong men and women—strong both morally and physically—is doomed to perish, even as old Greece and Rome perished, and hence patriotism to a Sokol means development of sound bodies with sound minds in them in every member of the nation—man, woman and child, and that is his program.

His is clearly a stupendous undertaking, worthy of notice. An aim which commands respect. An endeavor which enlists the sympathy of every well meaning man and woman. At the very top of the Sokol banner is written the motto of the founder, Miroslav Tyrs: "Neither profit nor glory!" Sokol Idea realized means a regenerated nation, full of vitality and indomitable energy. It harks back to the ideals of old Greece, in her palmy days. It opposes luxury, indolence and moral torpidity, love of everything noble and pure, self-denial for the good of the whole, for the welfare of the nation.

A Sokol, when among his own, is in an atmosphere of a tremendous aspiration, but not in a dreamland. His aspirations are wonderfully real, his goals attainable, his endeavor to reach them never ceasing.

The very fact that there are thirty thousand men and women in the United States subscribing to this idea should thrill every true American heart.

Sokols are not just an athletic organization. To think that would be doing an injustice to this noble organization. They do not meet just for social purposes or for entertainment. They are consciously the nation's support, the soldiers of progress, the promoters of the highest type of humanity.

The means used to attain the goal are: (1) systematic training of the body which Locke would perhaps call the "hardening process" and (2) systematic education of the membership on questions of public policy, hygiene, art, philosophy, literature and all matters pertaining to human happiness and human progress. Every active member is obliged to attend the weekly drills and go faithfully through the rigors of the training which is claimed to be of the best. The founders of Sokols, Tyrs and Fugner, were close students of physical culture and their system is the result of their painstaking labors and attended by their deep insight into the matter.

The Sokol discipline is Spartan. The Sokol must bear hardship without complaint; must be ready to assist others; must not look for mean advantages or comfort at the expense of those around him (or her), must scorn weakness and prize honor above all earthly possessions. "Leap over, break (the barrier), do not crawl," is one of his (her) mottoes. The very name "Sokol" was chosen to symbolize these ideas. "Sokol" is a Bohemian word for falcon—a bird which glories in the power of his wings and the sharpness of his eyesight, and chooses the blue heights of the firmament for his abode. "Onward and upward," is the constant urge in the Sokol ranks.

It is onward and upward in the spiritual as well as his physical development. The work of enlightenment is done on an extensive scale. Libraries, lecture courses, gatherings for the purpose of discussing questions of importance are offered to the membership. To be progressive, to be enlightened is a sacred duty. A special committee is in charge of this educational work.

It was strict adherence to these principles, faithful carrying out of this program, never flagging zeal in living the Sokol Gospel which achieved the successes I have briefly mentioned in my talk tonight.

The physical training done in real earnest and hence the Sokol's contribution to the health of the nation is incalculable. Erect backbone, sound heart, muscles supple and strong—such are the results of Sokol physical training. And on top of it all endurance, fortitude and the iron will to forge ahead. No wonder that the motto "Every Czech a Sokol" is ringing from mountain top to mountain top, from city to city, and that there is hardly a village so humble as not to be represented in the Sokol movement.

If there be those who are in despair over the future of the white race; if there be those who are looking for encouragement and for assurances that after all, there is hope and that we are not all going to the dogs; indeed, if there be those who are gladdened by the sight of humanity engaged in self-improvement—if there be, in brief, any who wish to be inspired and filled with new hope for the human race: let them get acquainted with the Sokols and the Sokol Idea. I dare say they will come from their sojourn refreshed and greatly encouraged. A wonderful opportunity to see the American Sokols at their best is offered all Chicagoans by the Slet or Festival which will be held in the Grant Park Stadium on June 28, when Sokols from the whole U. S. will demonstrate the efficacy of their methods. Hoping firmly to see you there I end with the Sokol greeting Na zdar!

Giving Everybody a Square Deal On Electric Light and Power Rates

"The dominating fundamental principle of rate charging in the United States—approved by our State Regulating Commissions—is to make each group of consumers self-sustaining and pay for the cost of the service they are receiving. That is, not to carry one group at the expense of some other group."

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless, salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; make a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

One of the greatest problems with which the management of the electric light and power companies as well as the public service commissions of the various states are most earnestly striving to solve is that of fixing rates upon the basis of which charges made for electric light and power service shall be equitable to all classes of consumers and to the company rendering the service.

It is evident that a really fair charge to each individual customer would be one equal to the actual cost of rendering and maintaining the service respectively supplied, plus fair interest on the investment required to render that service.

That is the ideal which in practice the electric light and power companies and the public service commissions are striving to reach. But the difficulty hinges on the fact that the investment and operating costs to render the service demanded are not entirely proportionate to the amount of electricity supplied.

Here are the reasons why:

1. The cost of meter reading, accounting, billing, collections and other items of overhead and service are practically identical in the service of customers whose consumption of electricity widely differs.
2. The difference between production, transmission, distribution and meter installation costs involved in giving service to large and small users is usually less in proportion than the difference between the amounts of electric energy respectively supplied.

3. The costs named in item 2 are further modified by the degree in which the consumer maintains a continuous demand for a uniform amount of electricity, and by the time of day at which the consumer's use of electricity is greatest.

For instance, suppose a customer has his own power plant but wants to make an arrangement whereby, if his own plant breaks down, he can immediately switch his lights and motors on the electric light and power company's system. Obviously the electric company has to provide all equipment necessary to carry that load if or when it comes. Consequently a charge is made for this

"stand-by service"—even though the plant capacity held available is never actually used in that particular customer's service. It is self-evident that such a charge is just. On the same principle this stand-by factor enters into the service of customers who use electricity supplied by the electric light and power company in large volume during short periods but in relatively small volume the greater part of the time. Since the electric company must invest in equipment of sufficient capacity to accommodate the customer's greatest demand it is necessary to apply a stand-by charge to the customer's bills to help carry this investment when the customer's demand for electricity falls off. It is this stand-by principle when so applied that is meant by the item of "demand" often referred to in electric light and power rate schedules.

As for the variation in charges arising from the time of day at which a given customer's greatest demand occurs, it is apparent that during certain hours of the twenty-four less energy will be normally required for electric light or power. Therefore, conforming to the law of supply and demand, a lower rate is justified during such hours in order to keep invested capital productively employed and to compensate the customer for using the service at an unpopular time.

4. Certain classes of electric equipment used by many electric light and power customers have inherent characteristics which demand from the electric light and power system to which they are connected an amount of generating and transmission capacity exceeding that required by other electric appliances using a similar amount of power. If the electric company supplies energy to the first class of appliances at the same rate as to the second class it will be seen that the first class is tying up a disproportionate part of the company's service facilities without returning adequate compensation. Consequently some companies provide for such cases by introducing in their rate schedules a "power-factor" clause which equitably discriminates between the two classes of service. Electric light and power companies are also increasingly active in preventing the need of applying such a clause to their rates, by pointing out to the customer the advantage to himself of using equipment having desirable power-factor characteristics.

It will be seen from the foregoing that the making of just rates for every electric light and power user is a difficult problem. The rates that are in force today are the result of sincere efforts on the part of the electric light and power companies and the regulatory bodies empowered by government, to reconcile many factors for the one purpose of assuring to the public the best service on a sound basis.

DARROW GETS HIS ANSWER.

Death has come to a man who was, as he said himself, not without his battles—has come gently as dreamland whisperings to a sleeping child, leaving only calm and peace and rest. The majestic quietude of it, together with the circumstances that came before, make of death for William Jennings Bryan at once a chaplet for his career and a touchstone to judge him by.

Pictures come to us now—of a lad set upon a table to fan aglow the hearts of plainmen with words of winged persuasion, of a young unknown rising amidst the counsellors of his party to brush them from their feet in the sweep of impetuous advocacy; of the dauntless veteran of countless principled victories and of many personal defeats, of a Warwick at Baltimore as with the magic of his voice and the might of his courage alone he snatches success out of failure, and names a man to change, as it turns out, the history of the world. But they fade, these pictures do, and one only persists beyond them all, not so high or wide or glamorous, perhaps, as the others seem, but rooted deeper than any of them in the soul-stuff that is in us all. And, for all we know, the years that shall measure him will be unable to erase it.

It is a picture of the man now dead sitting with an old palmleaf fan, held as Cocur de Lion might have held his mace or Charles Martel his hammer, confronting his adversary, a squat and half-crouched figure set for the fray upon his chosen ground. Again we are at that wild, that foolish, that transcendental trial where cunning doubt and stubborn faith wrestled like Michael and Satan disputing over the body of Moses. Again we sense the drama of that background of simple, believing country folk interspersed with chaffing, jarring, sight-seeing incomers from at large. Again we all but feel the swish of flagellant question and the unyielding fierceness of reply that outraged all rules of court procedure, of orderly discussion or even of common fair play. Again we find ourselves fascinated at it, and again are we provoked at the needlessness of it all. We know now how terribly in earnest Bryan must have been, and the knowing silences even the skeptic's sneer. The dignity of death in such a case magnifies the intent to the overshadowing of the deed.

Bryan may have known less than Darrow of the origin of man. None of us knows any too much. Nor does it matter in the larger scale of values upon which the one of these two built his whole life while the other has ignored. For it is not the origin, but the destiny of man that counts. The answer to doubt, of course, is not argument, no, not even from the lips of surpassing eloquence. And so it comes about that in the untroubled passing of Bryan, the believer, Darrow has his answer, bigger than any question which he can contrive to frame—more convincing than any hypothesis upon which he can stumble in his searchings—and perhaps in the contemplation of it he, with every a comrade in doubt, has in his thinking uncovered at last his own soul, naked, groping and afraid. —Dallas News.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

The hour of that reckoning which comes to us all—the great, the near great and the atom—has come to William Jennings Bryan. The Apostle of Peace fell asleep Sunday afternoon in Dayton, Tenn. There will be no awakening for him in this life. Until the last he was militant in courageously and valiantly fighting any and all opposition to his views, personal, political or religious.

There is in American history no instance in which so large a following has been faithful to such a consistent loser. No man ever prominent in the political life of the nation has held such a hold upon the faith of those who believed in him and his policies as did Mr. Bryan. And perhaps no man marked so vividly the cleavage between those who were for him and those who were against him. He knew no compromise. He demanded, always and ever, leadership in the battles he waged. And for a man of peace, his life was one long battle for what he conceived was right. While millions disagreed, other millions were steadfast, and up to the hour of his passing he was a force to be reckoned with. From that hour in the democratic national convention in Chicago in 1896, when he sprang, full panoplied, into fame as the last words of his "Cross of Gold" speech completely swept the convention off its feet and made him—the unknown, the untired—the leader of his party, to that other hour when he fell into that last, long sleep, never for a moment did he permit a great section of the American people to forget that he was in the fight for what he declared to be right.

Unlike Cleveland, the majority never loved him for the enemies he made. Those who loved him loved him blindly, and those who hated him put into it an intensity that knew no bounds. But nothing could shake him loose from that hold upon his party that accepted him as their leader. Three times he strove for the greatest office within the gift of the people, and three times he was turned back at the very threshold of victory he fought for so valiantly. The world has never seen such consistent adherence to a loser—a loser who appeared to those who fought him and those who supported him as predestined to miss the supreme hour which comes on the wings of victory.

Whatever may be the final opinion of William Jennings Bryan, now that he is dead there will be few to deny the long enduring power he exercised over those who were his adherents, or his influence upon the policies and politics of the nation. Few men have attained the greatness he forced in spite of those who would have blotted him from the very scheme of things political. No man in American life, and suffering the handicap of such a line of refusal on the part of a majority of the people to accept him, has left such a record of long continued leadership. There was no questioning his courage or his brilliance as an orator. His most ardent opponent will not deny him this meed of recognition. From that moment in 1896, when the question "Who is Bryan?" rang across the continent, to that other moment when his voice was still in Dayton he never permitted himself to be forgotten or loosened his hold as a dominant influence. Though as consistently denied approval at the ballot box, he held fast to his place as the one man who was to be reckoned with. In no other instance has any American sprang so instantly into leadership and remained there, secure in the affections of those who loved him.

There are those who contend he has been a stumbling block in the way of his party, while others who look into the past without rancor or partisanship declare they see the imprint of the man upon the thought of the nation. They declare he was ahead of his time, and point to those acts and policies he advocated long before they became the law or were accepted by the majority of public opinion. Others as vehemently deny this, and point to his failure to win the coveted goal sought in every act of his time. He knew no privacy. He hid no thought because he feared the result of public knowledge of where he stood.

With eloquence he combined a high order of intellect, to which was added honesty of purpose and fidelity to conviction—a triumvirate of qualities which has never failed to appeal to the people of America.

Mr. Bryan probably addressed during the last 30 years more people than any orator in any age has ever done. His voice was so clear and musical as to charm every hearer, and his manifest sincerity never failed to deeply impress his hearers.

He was a born orator, and was never more eloquent than when defending the Christian faith against the assaults of unbelief.

There were those who deemed him at times erratic, and some of those who radically antagonized him in opinion, assailed him bitterly at times, but no fair-minded man ever questioned his honesty of conviction, and he walked so uprightly that truth could not and ridicule dared not assail him.

A voice of marvelous eloquence is forever silent on earth; a heart which throbbed always in response to honest impulse beats no longer. A power for political, social and moral righteousness has been removed, and sincere sorrow will fill the hearts of many millions.—Houston Chronicle.

CAR OVERTURNS WITH CAMERON MEN MONDAY

JIM BASKIN AND PAUL WEBB INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE WRECK.

While on their way to Austin early Monday morning near San Gabriel the car in which Jim Baskin, Bob Young and Paul Webb, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce were riding was overturned and wrecked. The occupants escaped with slight injuries.

Mr. Baskin was injured about the shoulders and Mr. Webb suffered bruises about the neck. The car was overturned when it struck a deep rut in the road and went into a ditch. All pinned beneath the car and all made their escape readily except Mr. Webb and while the other men went for aid he extracted himself from the wreck.

Austin, Texas, July 27.—Following hearing on reports from drouth-stricken counties in Central Texas, the Texas railroad commission today appointed a committee of nine to formulate plans to carry out emergency freight rates for feed for livestock in that area.

The committee is to report later to the commission and the carriers. It is composed of W. D. Farris, chairman, Ennis; Ben E. Clement, Waco, N. C. Webb, San Marcos; D. G. Giddings, Brenham; Owen Sherrell, Georgetown; W. A. Wurzbach, San Antonio; Joe Carrington, DeWitt county; A. E. Wood, Granger, and A. L. Reed, Dallas.

About 400 railroad men and farmers attended the morning session of the hearing. The farmers reported that crop conditions are unfavorable and that the situation is serious because of the drouth.

The hearing was proposed by the commission because of the crisis that confronts the farmers in the drouth-stricken area, in an effort to obtain voluntary reduced freight rates during the emergency.

CEMENT MAGNOLIA TEST IN ROCKDALE FIELD.

Rockdale, Texas, July 22.—Having completed running the full string of six and one-fourth-inch, 24-pound casing the entire footage of open hole 3,805 feet, in Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 1 M. M. Kime wildcat, five and four-fifths miles south by southwest of Rockdale in the S. P. Carson survey, the work of running in 10 tons of cement was begun and completed within an hour.

Drilling-in will be delayed, however, due to the fact that the company has decided to change from rotary to standard cable tools and this will necessitate putting in cement foundations beneath the derrick. It probably will not be earlier than August 4 or 5 when the wildcat can be drilled in.

Insects and Scientists

Scientists are making a special study of animal and insect life as a means of determining changes which have taken place in the earth. The relations insects of one region bear to those of another indicate that certain islands were once connected. In Jamaica, recently, they explored a very ancient section of that country that has been above the sea for a longer time than its neighboring land and which shelters insect tribes of great age. This discovery leads authorities to believe that animal life of that isle is more closely associated with those of Haiti or Cuba, and that it originally found its way from the mainland over a land bridge long since engulfed by the ocean.—Family Herald.

Gas From Flower Gardens

The great development of natural gas in the industries around Pittsburgh, Pa., is in a considerable measure due to George Westinghouse of airbrake fame. He finally induced his wife to let him sink a shaft in her flower garden, his labor being rewarded by a geyser when he had gone about 1,000 feet. From this came the development of the Pittsburgh supply. Westinghouse himself worked out the system of piping that enabled it to be distributed without leakage, at the same time reducing the pressure by the use of gradually larger pipes, until it could be safely handled by the time it reached a customer.

BODY OF W. B. HEAD IS FOUND IN COLORADO

WAS NEPHEW OF D. B. HEAD OF CAMERON—LOST TWO YEARS.

Denver, July 25.—The body of W. B. Head, 5, jeweler of Mineola, Texas, was recovered late Friday, after having been lost in the mountains for more than two years.

The body was found near St. Mary's Glacier, where the ravages of time had reduced it to a skeleton. Identification was made through a wrist-watch which was still on his arm, a kodak and key to his automobile. Head and a party of friends were camping in the James Peak region when he disappeared. Hundreds of dollars in rewards were offered for his recovery, scores of persons assisted in the search for months and numerous bloodhounds were used to trail Head, without avail.

W. C. Head, father of the dead man, has been notified.

At the time of the death of W. B. Head the Herald printed a story about the tragedy. Mr. Head is the nephew of D. B. Head of the Triggs Dry Goods Company of this city, the father of the young man whose body was found, being his brother.

Friends in Cameron of the family will be interested to learn that the body has been found and sympathize with the family in their bereavement.

FARMERS IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY MEETS AUG. 7

NEGRO FARMERS TO DISCUSS BETTER FARM METHODS HERE.

The Farmer's Improvement Society of Milam County will meet in annual session at the Cross Roads near Jones Prairie on the 7, 8 and 9 of August for the purpose of discussing plans of co-operation along the lines of improved methods of farming, stock and poultry raising. This Organization, headed in the county by Geo. W. Sledge, includes the people who went before the commissioners Court a few years ago and asked the court to give three hundred dollars for the purpose of paying a colored Extension Agent to teach the colored people the plans of scientific farming. Sledge expresses himself as being very proud of the progress being made by his people along this line. The Branches of the Farmer's Improvement Societies, in every community in Milam county, are co-operating with Prof. J. H. Williams, the Colored Extension Agent, in putting over his improved methods of farming.

This society is headed in Texas by the well known R. L. Smith, who at one time represented Colorado county in the Texas Legislature. During his stay there he was respected by the White Representatives throughout the State. The Farmer's Improvement Society owns a Bank and other property in Waco, an agricultural School and Overall Factory near Ladonia, Texas, and is teaching the boys the best methods of farming and the girls home economics. Geo. W. Sledge was raised in Milam county and has always advised his people to co-operate with the white people in putting over the things best for both races.

THORN IN EYE

FOR 45 YEARS—
REMOVED HERE.

Mrs. J. L. Scott of Rogers was brought to Dr. Taylor's, eye ear, nose and throat institute on last Saturday and had her left eye removed. She is forty five years old. At age of five she was stuck in the eye with a thorn. At that time the eye treatment was not up to date, as now, so she and nature provided her comfort, but every four of five years this would give some trouble. Some ten days ago, she contracted a little cold and an acute condition set up in the eye. The usual medical treatment was given with no results. The ball began to get hard and pus began to form and sympathy set up in the other eye, so the bad one was removed. She withstood the operation fine, remaining in the institution forty eight hours, then taken home with out pain which she had been experiencing.

The eye ball was cut open after removal and the thorn found inside of a sack which nature had provided as in many cases. To think of one carrying a thorn in the eye ball for forty years is almost unbelievable. It takes many years for many of us to learn just how kind nature is to us.

MRS. CARROLL SUMRALL.

Mrs. Carroll Sumrall of Hoyte died suddenly Monday night at her home and was buried Tuesday at Val Verde Cemetery in sight of her former home. Mrs. Sumrall was a devoted member of the Baptist church of Val Verde and her funeral was conducted by Rev. Sumrall who is conducting a revival there. She leaves behind her devoted husband and the following children. Mrs. Mary Henry of Lubbock, Loleat, Tommy, Emmett, Russell, Caramen and Curtis Hamblen. The funeral at Val Verde was largely attended by friends and relatives. Beautiful flowers were sent to cover her mound.

Mrs. Sumrall's maiden name was Miss Nora Lile. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lile and her parents with several brothers and sisters survive her.

WOULD RAISE FUND TO AID FARMERS IN AREA OF DROUTH.

W. A. Morrison in a discussion of plans to entertain the school trustee of Milam county in Cameron in the near future, before the Lion's Club Tuesday, gave expression in addition to these plans to thought now being advanced to provide assistance to farmers in the drouth areas of Milam county.

Mr. Morrison proposed a fund of $100,000 to be administered in loans to farmers. He said he will be one of 100 to put into the fund $1000 for the benefit of the farmers.

While no definite action was taken it is believed some effort will be made along these lines to tide over the agricultural population until better times come.

Many Names Bestowed on Species of Duck

A study of the local names of American birds leads one to believe that our citizens delight to invent names for the species in which they take interest. In almost any region names for certain birds can be found that are not used elsewhere. Hence it is possible to collect rather long lists of names for birds that attract popular attention. For instance, 92 local names are known for a single species of wild duck, the ruddy. In this case, as in others, some of the names have a touch of humor or local color that renders their study a pleasure.

The ruddy duck, for instance, gets such appellations as booby, dumb bird and sleepy head, because it is slow to take alarm; and others like hard head, leather breeches and shot pouch, because so often it safely emerges from a perfect rain of shot. It has various derogatory nicknames, among the mildest of which are dinky, blather-skite and fool duck, says Forest and Stream.

Snail's Pace?

"He moves at a snail's pace," is a remark frequently heard, especially when the subject is a youngster going to school or an office-boy who has been sent on an errand.

But even of the slowest of the younger generation the statement is, to say the least, slightly exaggerated. A recent experiment proved that a snail progresses at the rate of one mile in a fortnight.

If you place a snail on a sheet of glass and watch the underside, you will see a series of ripples along the animal's foot. This foot is a network of muscles, and the rippling is produced by these muscles lengthening the foot in front and shortening it behind, which is the snail's mode of progression.

Composition of Yeast

Yeast, strictly speaking, is a substance consisting of the cells of certain minute fungi. It appears as a surface froth or as a sediment in fruit juices and other saccharine liquids in which it induces alcoholic fermentation. Yeast is made of millions of minute, shapely plants. What is popularly called yeast is a culture of such fungi or plants. Manufacturers cannot "make" yeast in the sense that they can mix chemicals and produce it. Yeast increases only by the multiplication of the fungi cells. In other words, you must have seed yeast to start with. Ordinary cake yeast sold on the market is composed of yeast cultures in other substances pressed into cakes.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Tracing Use of Gas

Natural gas was used in a practical way by the Chinese shortly after the opening of the Christian era for such purposes as the evaporation of salt from brine. It is said that certain houses in Peking were heated—if not lighted—with the gas.

In Europe the first use of gas for commercial purposes dates back to the experiments made by Murdoch, who lighted his home with it in 1792, and to the work carried to a more practical conclusion by Winsor. In the United States the first gas plant was established in Baltimore in 1816, which was followed by one in Boston in 1823 and one in New York in 1825.

Annular Eclipse

If the sun is very near the moon's node when our satellite becomes new, clearly the moon must then pass almost exactly between earth and sun. If at the same time she is in apogee, her apparent size is a little less than that of the sun. Then her conical shadow does not quite reach the surface of the earth, and a ring of sunlight is left, surrounding the dark moon completely. This is called an annular eclipse, because of the annulus, or bright ring of sunlight still left shining.

Had Origin in Quoits

The game of horseshoes is based on quoits, which is a pastime resembling the ancient discus-throwing of Greece. Few traces of a game resembling quoits can be found on the continent of Europe and its origin may be sought for on the borderlands of Scotland and England. There are references to it in the midlands, dating from the beginning of the fifteenth century. Ascham, in his "Toxophilus" (1545), refers to the game as being chiefly by the working classes, who often used horseshoes for want of quoits, a custom still prevailing in country districts.

Designed for Convenience

The position of the hands of a clock is one which has been selected for the reason that it furnishes the greatest facility to meet the requirement for painting the longer name above the hands and the shorter word below. The minute hand has been varied in position from 17 to 25 minutes after 8. Sometimes the longer name requires to be written in a semi-circle above the hands. There have been stories connected with the death of Lincoln, that the position of the hands is commemorative of the hour of the death but this is not true.

The Eyes of Evil

By BAYARD D. YORK

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

BACK in town, the eighteen-mile drive to Clayton Beach had seemed like a simple venture. And even now, as the world darkened ominously beneath the thickening clouds and the deserted summer cottages rose in dreary lines before her, Marion Hamilton entertained no thought of turning back.

"I know just where I left that letter," she thought. "I'll run up and get it—and in five minutes be on my way home again."

The letter had been tossed into the top drawer of her dresser and forgotten. This afternoon she had remembered its existence; and acting impulsively, had set out in her coupe. Without the letter, her father faced trial and possible conviction as a thief; in it, if she remembered the contents correctly, he possessed a convincing alibi.

As she slipped the key into the lock she glanced over her shoulder. Surely this sullen gray-green monster was not the ocean whose sparkling summer moods she loved so much! She entered, and, with swift glances to either side, hurried up the stairs to the door of her room.

It was evident that the room had been thoroughly ransacked. She rushed to the dresser. Intuition told her at once what a careful search confirmed—the letter was gone!

She rushed from the room—and stopped with staring eyes. From around a corner of the hallway appeared a man's head, the face unshaven, the eyes gleaming from the gloom. With a smothered cry Marion turned and ran down the stairs, caught her heel and fell. She arose with a sickening sense of pain. At the first step her left ankle crumpled under her; the room whirled away into blackness, and she slipped limply to the floor.

Consciousness returned slowly; but as she finally regained a moderate degree of clearness of mind she noted that a wet towel was being held against her forehead and that a man stood beside her. He was not the one whose face she had seen upstairs—but he impressed her no less unpleasantly. His young face bore the prints of dissipation and a steely light gleamed in his somewhat shifty eyes.

She rose to her feet.

"Will you help me to my car—" she began.

The young man laughed shortly. "Bad night for traveling," he suggested. "You'll stay here."

"What are you doing here?" she demanded.

"About a year ago your father tried to put Sandy Lane behind the bars," he said. "Your father was warned, but he persisted. That was a mistake. Your father knows now—he's going to pay the penalty."

"You are Sandy Lane," she murmured involuntarily.

"That doesn't matter," he remarked. "You are Arthur Hamilton's daughter—that's what counts. I guess—"

Marion heard no more. At that instant she saw again the man with the unshaven face. He was moving slowly down the stairs.

Fascination and terror held her motionless.

Then one of the stairs creaked. The young man whirled with the speed of lightning. The big man rushed past her.

The short struggle was titanic. Once their bodies struck the table at Marion's side and the table crumpled like a thing of cardboard. She moved back, each step on her sprained ankle hurting cruelly.

And suddenly she realized that she had an opportunity to be something more than an idle onlooker. The young man was on his back now, still struggling violently, but very evidently losing the fight. But Marion could see what the bigger man had failed to notice—that a revolver had fallen to the floor from somewhere and that the young man's hand was groping for it.

And then she sprang forward and snatched the revolver away. Instinctively she had decided that of the two she would rather throw herself on the mercy of the older man.

The latter rose presently and yanked the other man to a sitting position and then up into a chair.

"The end of the trail, Sandy," he muttered with a quiet ring of triumph in his voice. "It's been a long trip—but we've arrived at last."

He turned—to find himself covered with the weapon which Marion held. A sudden smile broke over his face.

"Don't blame you," he remarked—and Marion was surprised at the quality of gentleness in his tone. "I must look like a ruffian—though I feel like a very efficient and highly pleased police officer."

Suddenly she realized that those evil eyes were directed upon her with all the vengeance of the handcuffed man's soul behind them.

"Wait till I get out," he muttered. "It'll be some wait," the officer interposed. "You'll do time for the job you tried to frame up against Mr. Hamilton. But there's worse than that coming to you, Sandy Lane."

CEMENT MAGNOLIA TEST IN ROCKDALE FIELD.

Rockdale, Texas, July 22.—Having completed running the full string of six and one-fourth-inch, 24-pound casing the entire footage of open hole 3,805 feet, in Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 1 M. M. Kime wildcat, five and four-fifths miles south by southwest of Rockdale in the S. P. Carson survey, the work of running in 10 tons of cement was begun and completed within an hour.

Drilling-in will be delayed, however, due to the fact that the company has decided to change from rotary to standard cable tools and this will necessitate putting in cement foundations beneath the derrick. It probably will not be earlier than August 4 or 5 when the wildcat can be drilled in.

If your eye could talk as well as see

What would it say?

Would its message be one of caution—that you are heading for trouble?

With the majority of people, this would be exactly the case!

However, the eye does talk—but without words or sounds! It warns you with a tired, dull ache when you have read or worked long at a time—with sharp, thrusting flashes of pain through the head—with consistent "headaches."

Heed these danger signals, and visit a reliable optometrist at once. Your eye never "talks" in its quiet, insistent way but that it means what it says—it needs attention.

William Jennings Bryan Dies At Dayton, Tenn.

Dayton, Tenn., July 26.—William Jennings Bryan was discovered dead in bed this afternoon by a servant. He had retired to his room in the early afternoon for a nap and was found dead at 4:30 o'clock. Heart disease was given as the cause of death.

He was in the best of spirits and expressed himself as "feeling fine," when he retired shortly after lunch, about 1:30 o'clock. He had attended services at the Southern Methodist Episcopal church before lunch, and had partaken of a hearty meal before retiring to his room.

The companions of Mrs. Bryan passed through the room and noticed him breathing heavily, and rushed for the nearest neighbor, A. B. Andrews, who, on reaching the scene, summoned Doctors W. F. Thomson and A. C. Broyles, who, on examination, said Mr. Bryan had been dead probably fifteen minutes. Mrs. Bryan, the chauffeur and her companion were in the house when he died.

Mrs. Bryan was writing on the porch when her husband passed away. Efforts are being made to locate the son, W. J. Bryan, Jr., who is in California, and also a daughter who resides in California.

Mrs. Bryan was preparing to leave Dayton in the next day or so for Idaho, where she expected to spend the summer with her son.

Mr. Bryan was to leave Dayton Tuesday for Knoxville, Tenn., where he would deliver two speeches, then go to Nashville for a similar engagement before going to Florida. He expected to join Mrs. Bryan again in the fall.

Mr. Bryan was in Chattanooga yesterday morning after having spent the night at the Ross hotel, en route to Winchester. He arrived Saturday evening at 6:30 from Winchester, where he had spoken twice during the day. His first speech Saturday was delivered at Jasper, followed by an address at noon, to the Civitan club, of Winchester.

He was taken to Dayton Sunday morning by A. W. Lessly, owner of the Ross hotel, and they reached there about 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Bryan stayed at home during the morning, and made arrangements for the speech to be delivered at the court house in Dayton tomorrow night. Another engagement of importance was one at the Hotel Aqua tomorrow at 6:30 when he would meet with the Progressive Dayton club and lay plans for the Bryan college movement, for which was to be definitely launched at the dinner tomorrow night.

The town was shocked by the tragedy and five minutes after the doctors' examination revealed that Mr. Bryan was dead, the streets near the home thronged with people. Mrs. Bryan is said to be entirely composed, and is bearing up wonderfully under the terrible blow.

She expressed the desire that her husband be buried in Arlington cemetery, and feels it may be arranged, in that he holds the title of colonel. She also said she had heard her husband express a desire to be buried there. No arrangements will be made, however, until W. J. Bryan, Jr., is located and communicated with.

Mr. Bryan expressed pleasure that the Scopes trial had suddenly collapsed before he was permitted to make his prepared speech, declaring that now he could present it to the people of the country, just as he wanted to, without interruptions from opposing counsel, and without having to make extemporaneous replies to preceding speeches. He appeared concerned over the coming battle between fundamentalism and modernism, and seemed eager for the fray.

Mr. Bryan came here and made arrangements to publish his speech, and had expected to deliver it at Chattanooga, Knoxville, Nashville and Hartsville, the latter place being the home of Senator Butler, author of the state anti-evolution law.

Saturday, Bryan spoke at Winchester, carrying out a promise made to Attorney General A. T. Stewart during the trial that at its close he would deliver an address to the attorney general's fellow townsmen.

As the "leader of the fundamentalists" Mr. Bryan was made to feel very much at home in Dayton and Rhea county. His entrance and departure from the court room were marked by a succession of handshakes. Rhea county politically has been found frequently in the republican column, and many of opposite political faith were among the most ardent admirers of the former democratic candidate for president, and cabinet officer.

During the Scopes trial in Dayton the heat was most oppressive and the court room crowded to the doors. Mr. Bryan was of necessity seated inside the rail at the council table, where there was very little air.

While he carried a palm leaf fan, there was little air circulation or breeze through the room, and he seemed to feel the heat exceedingly.

However, as far as known, he made no complaint, and there was nothing to indicate that torridity was in any way undermining his health.

It is not known here if Mr. Bryan had previously suffered any heart affections.

Rub Rheumatic Pain From Aching Joints

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism.

It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappears and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Lumber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment, you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

Had Origin in Quoits

The game of horseshoes is based on quoits, which is a pastime resembling the ancient discus-throwing of Greece. Few traces of a game resembling quoits can be found on the continent of Europe and its origin may be sought for on the borderlands of Scotland and England. There are references to it in the midlands, dating from the beginning of the Fifteenth century. Ascham, in his "Toxophilus" (1545), refers to the game as being chiefly by the working classes, who often used horseshoes for want of quoits, a custom still prevailing in country districts.

Designed for Convenience

The position of the hands of a clock is one which has been selected for the reason that it furnishes the greatest facility to meet the requirement for painting the longer name above the hands and the shorter word below. The minute hand has been varied in position from 17 to 25 minutes after 8. Sometimes the longer name requires to be written in a semi-circle above the hands. There have been stories connected with the death of Lincoln, that the position of the hands is commemorative of the hour of the death but this is not true.

BADLY RUN-DOWN

Lady Was Very Depressed on Account of Poor Health.

Mrs. H. S. Miller, of Spindale, N. C., says: "Five years ago I was very much run-down in health. I would give out with the least exertion. At times I would have to go to bed."

"I read of Cardui. . . My husband got me a bottle and encouraged me to take it. I was almost a skeleton, I was so thin. I was run-down and my general health was very poor. This was very depressing and I was in low spirits. My husband had to help me around. He did all he could for me and had me keep up Cardui."

"I continued taking the medicine for several months and it was wonderful the improvement I made. I gained over twenty pounds in weight, and I felt so much better besides. This gain was permanent, too. I have never lost it and my general health has been much better since I took Cardui."

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Many New Ideas in Better Buicks

Standard Six, five passenger two-door sedan

Greater Power, More Protection to Working Parts Included; Prices Lower

Buick again demonstrates the marvelous resources and abilities of the automotive industry when it introduced the present Better Buick. Embraced in this latest Buick offering are additional power and strength, the newest engineering achievements designed to give even longer motor car life, the maximum in comfort and safety, besides new beauty and refinements of design and finish representing the latest skill in body craftsmanship. And in face of these material and costly improvements lower prices are announced throughout the entire line of Standard and Master Sixes.

The announcement and the showing of the better Buicks silenced the rumors that Buick would abandon the valve-in-head for another type engine which would permit of cheaper construction. The same principles that were inaugurated by Buick 21 years ago and which have made it the leader in the industry have been adhered to throughout.

The mechanical improvements introduced would have been considered impossibilities only a year ago. The present work of Buick research and engineering staffs constantly striving for betterments.

The new prices likewise represent achievements of the engineering, production and business departments of the Buick organization, and are in no small measure due to the phenomenal approval of Buicks by the public. This latter factor has resulted in continuously increasing sales with the attendant possibilities of economies in purchasing and production.

The complete line includes 16 models, six in the Standard Six and ten in the Master Six class. In all cases the distinctive Buick lines have been continued, with refinements such as the rounding of radiator lines and the addition of streamline moldings. All are finished in new and beautiful tones of durable Duco. Some of the models have Duo-tone Duco finish in distinctive combinations.

All closed bodies are by Fisher and are upholstered in quality plush.

Buick has always been noted for its sealed chassis, which prevents dirt or water entering any of the moving parts. Now it has added an air cleaner, oil filter and gasoline strainer. These, combined with the standard Buick construction, practically eliminate the possibility of any foreign substance entering the engine or moving parts of the chassis and consequently, minimize service requirements and add to the life of the car.

Because these three new units have no moving parts, there is nothing to get out of adjustment. They require no power—in fact are thoroughly automatic, and require only occasional cleaning to remove the dirt and grime gathered from the air, fuel and oil.

The above illustration shows the Standard Six five-passenger, two-door sedan. The price of this model, $1,195, is representative of the increased values included in the entire line of Better Buicks.

ROCKDALE OIL FIELD ACTIVITY IS RENEWED

LEASING HEAVY AS SIX WELLS ARE COMPLETED FOR SHOWING.

Rockdale, Texas, July 25.—Six new producers brought in during the past week increase the daily production of the Rockdale shallow fields by approximately 150 barrels. Wells completed are as follows: Anchor Oil company's No. 1 Hamilton, drilled in Monday, pronounced good for 50 barrels; Milam Production company's No. 1 Gaither, brought in Friday, good for 25 barrels; the Jones et al's No. 1 Tom Phillips, drilled in Monday, good for 10 barrels; Bowman Oil company's No. 3 Gaither completed Tuesday, good for 25 barrels; Junior Oil company's No. 1 Hamilton, drilled in with oil Tuesday, good for 25 barrels or more, flowed all Tuesday night; Washpool Oil company's No. 7 Gross, brought in Friday, good for 15 barrels. These wells are all within two miles of the northern city limits of Rockdale. The F. D. Tuttle No. 1 Vance, cored in Wednesday. It is awaiting a shipment of casing to be completed. Hope Oil company's No. 1 branch was drilled in Friday, with no report.

The John E. Lee No. 1 Isaacs, four miles north, is shut down at 2750 feet for derrick repairs.

The Eagle Drilling company's No. 1 Joe Brown, wildcat, six miles west, is drilling at 110 feet and running short of water. Roy Long reports finding a new sand at around 1500 feet in his No. 3 Shroder, one mile west of here. Liner for careful test was set. The Magnolia company's No. 1 Kime wildcat deep test 6 miles southwest, which cored into the Edwards limestone last week for a good showing, has completed the job of setting 3805 feet of six and one-fourth inch casing, using 23 tons of cement in the operation. This test is changing from rotary to cable tools and will probably drill in within the next 10 days.

The Pure Oil company paid $5 per acre for 134 acre lease lying four miles south of the Magnolia. The Magnolia company itself this week paid $10,000 cash to Mrs. Grace Kime for 900 acre lease adjoining the drilling block. R. B. Cardell, owning the adjoining Magnolia test, sold some one-thirty-second royalty interest to Rockdale parties at $15 per acre, a basis of $60. The Sun Oil company has paid $15 per acre, straight commercial lease, on 58 acres of T. J. Carver tract more than two miles northeast of the Magnolia test.

MELON RAISING VERY PROFITABLE THIS YEAR

J. R. Wilder, living south of town, has marketed $237 worth of melons from a patch of about one-fourth of an acre of land so far this season and has about seventy-five or one hundred melons yet to sell. To many here in town and those living on the black land this seemed preposterous to think of and Mr. Wilder was requested to explain the secret of his success in the face of the general drouth from which all sections of Central Texas are now suffering. Mr. Wilder explained that there was no mystery about it at all. That this melon patch was a bit of land that heretofore was always too wet to permit of a crop any kind in seasonable years, it being of a marshy nature, and this year the lack of rain prompted him to try to grow melons on the land, and he really surprised himself in the success of his efforts. He has raised some of the finest melons ever marketed here and last week carried a truck load to Taylor which averaged forty pounds each. He marketed 93 melons at Taylor and got $93 for the load. Mr. Wilder says that he is planning to go to the Lubbock section as soon as his melon crop has been marketed as that it all the crop he will be able to count on this year. He has a position as manager of a gin in that section at a good salary.—Thorndale Champion.

Took a Friend's Advice

Houston, Texas.—"When I was comparatively a young woman I became afflicted with woman's trouble and got so I could hardly walk. I had a delicacy in submitting my case to the doctors. Finally a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I did so, and before I had taken three bottles I was all right. Later on in life I became afflicted with a kind of poison in my blood; for this I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and gradually my blood became pure. I never again had anything like either of these afflictions."—Mrs. D. M. Wilson, 1521 Fulton St. All dealers.

Milam Farmer Deeds Farm to God; Refuses to Pay State Taxes

Claiming that all things belong to the Lord, Adolph Boling, farmer and gin owner at Gause in this county has paid no taxes on his property in a number of years and now must face a suit for taxes. Recently in a letter to Roy Law, collector, Mr. Boling said that on receipt of the notice that his taxes were delinquent, took the matter up with the Lord and the Lord instructed him to pay no taxes for public use.

Mr. Boling owns 267 acres of land, a cotton gin at which he charges cash for ginning, a garage building and other property in Gause. A number of years ago he deeded his property to "God Almighty" as shown by the deed records and claims that he should pay no taxes on it.

Considerable interest is being shown in the proposed suit to collect the taxes that have been delinquent for a number of years. Several years ago a levy was made on personal property and in this way some of his tax money was collected. Mr. Boling is said to have accumulated considerable wealth but will not pay taxes on any of his property.

(Austin American)

Can the Lord be sued? Roy Law Tax Collector of Milam County, is puzzled over the question after a man who says he is the representative of God Almighty, legal owner of 500 acres of valuable farm land, has refused to pay taxes on it. Law asked members of the Association of Tax Collectors for advice on the matter in the afternoon session of the annual convention here Friday.

Richard Boling, a farmer living 20 miles from Cameron, who also operates a cotton gin on a cash basis, conveyed all his property in a legal deed to "God Almighty" about two years ago, Law said. Since that time he has refused to pay taxes on it because he says the Lord has instructed him not to pay taxes according to Law.

"It's a hard question; what would you do in a case like that?" Law asked in the convention discussion.

"Sue the Lord," one collector answered.

"Turn him over to the Ku Klux," President John M. Lowrey suggested.

JACK MOORE TRIAL

LAST SATURDAY

Jack Moore, convicted in District Court here Saturday for the murder of Mann Davis near San Gabriel on May 18 of this year, was given a 50 year sentence in the penitentiary. The case was given to the jury at 10 o'clock Friday night.

"Well, I will be 83 years old when I get out," was the comment made by Moore on the verdict. He seemed unmoved by the prospect of a prison term and talked lightly with his attorney. Moore was defended by Senator Wood of Granger and O. D. Graham of Thorndale. District Attorney Jack Lewis and E. A. Camp of Rockdale prosecuted.

Mann Davis was shot to death while plowing his field. Testimony in the trial said that Davis was shot as he sat on a cultivator and again as he fell to the ground. Mrs. Moore, testifying for her husband, said Davis had attempted to assault her. This testimony was contradicted by the state and proof was offered that Moore and Davis had quarreled about a crop on the place. Moore did not testify.

Jack Moore has been confined to the jail since his conviction and will remain in jail until his case has been acted upon by the higher courts.

Under the law he is not entitled to bond, having received a penitentiary sentence in excess of 15 years. If the sentence had been for a less period he would have been given bond pending the appeal of his case. He was given a fifty year sentence.

The case attracted the largest crowd in the history of murder trials during the past five years. Moore had made no statement and people generally were interested in the defense he would plead before the court. He did not testify and so far has never given his version of the killing.

Jack Lewis, district attorney, and E. A. Camp, associate in the prosecution made strong appeals for conviction.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder
Bothers You, Begin
Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

The Double Test

By CRITTENDEN MARRIOTT

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

HENRY VAN STORMOUT stamped up the three steps to the broad porch. At the top he paused and glared at the exceptionally handsome young woman who had come to the door to meet him.

"Mr. Harvey in?" he demanded. The girl studied him curiously. "No," she answered at last. "Dad won't be in till night. But I'm the business manager of this ranch. 'Spose you sit down and talk to me."

"Thank you," he said, less gruffly than before. "I'm Mr. Stormout," he continued. "I'm a business man, here on business, and I believe in putting things plainly. My son, Jack, is infatuated with you and wants to sacrifice all his prospects by marrying you. I want to buy him off and I'm prepared to pay. What's your price?"

Once more the girl studied the man. "You're gambling that I can deliver the goods," she observed; "and I'll play that you agree, and lay my cards on the table. I've done a good deal to pull Jack out of the dregs. Your son got here in an empty car. He had fled from New York because he thought he had killed a waiter in a hotel when he was drunk. He was a bundle of dirty rags when a brakeman flung him out of the car and under my horse's feet. Ed ridden over for the mail. Coming that way he seemed to be a special charge on me. So I told Jim Harris, dad's foreman, to put him in the wagon and take him to the ranch and try to make something out of him. That was three years ago. Three years! I suppose you've been hunting for him ever since?"

Van Stormout grunted. "You suppose wrong," he snorted. "He'd been going to the dogs for three years before that; and I wiped him out of my books. But when my younger son died two months ago I started a search. If he's still a sot—"

"He isn't. He hasn't touched a drop for more than two years. But if he had stayed a sot whose fault would it have been?"

"I can see that I owe you a good deal," repeated Stormout. "But, my dear young lady, can't you see that his reformation makes it all the more necessary for him to marry his class? The Stormouts are a very old family. They go back to—"

"To Adam! I know! So do the Harveys. But wait! I'm not through yet. About six weeks ago I saw some of your search propaganda in the Tucson Star telling all about Jack and the waiter and all. That put it squarely up to me and no time to lose. It was a case of put up or shut up. So I threw myself squarely at Jack's head."

"You did what?" Van Stormout was bewildered.

"Proposed to him! I knew Jack had been in love with me for at least two years and I know that he'd never ask me till he got that waiter off his mind."

"Humph." Van Stormout's feelings were sadly mixed. "You didn't tell him that—"

"I didn't tell him any truth, I lied. I told him that he had been identified and that officers were on the way from New York with extradition papers for him. And I offered to marry him and start for one of those Central American dumps where there isn't any extradition. I've got plenty of money—not so much as you have, I reckon, but plenty; and I said I'd put up for the two of us. Oh! I sure did make love to him, all right. And it would have about killed me if he'd taken me at my word. But I had to know, of course."

"Know what?"

"Know if he was yellow or clear white. And he turned out white. Turned me down flat. God bless him. I knew he was white; but—Lord! How I did love that boy. But I still had to prove him the other way."

"Eh?"

"Show him the primrose path, of course. So I told him that I had been lying—that there weren't any officers after him; that he hadn't even stunned that waiter, let alone killed him; that you had a fat calf ready to kill if he'd come home; and last I showed him the story in the newspaper."

"And then?" Van Stormout was breathless.

"Then he said that he preferred chicken to fat veal any day and that he meant to marry me and stay here; and that you could go to h—l. I knew he'd say something like that, but I was scared to death that he mightn't."

Van Stormout looked about him. "Here seems to be a pretty good place after all," he observed. "Looks a lot better to me than it did when I came half an hour ago. Probably it'll make a man of Jack in time."

"In time? He's a man, already!" Nellie's tones were indignant.

Van Stormout snickered. "I'll take your word for it," he agreed, hastily. "Shake"—he held out his hand.

Nellie took it. "Sure thing, papa," she chuckled.

Van Stormout chuckled, too. "Not yet," he cautioned. "Perhaps later—when I think it's time—"

"Time? Humph! I see it is time to put you wise to a few things. Jack and I were married yesterday. And Jack's coming up the walk right behind you. Shake again, papa—for keeps!"

And Van Stormout shook.

So Sudden

He—I love the good, the true, the beautiful, the innocent—

She—This is rather sudden, but I think father will consent.

Father ricked Moral From Youngster's Joke

A prominent Los Angeles attorney told the following story in a recent address to the graduates of a grammar school. He said that his son, a high-school graduate, came home one day and asked him if he were a good mathematician.

"Yes, my boy, I think I'm pretty good," the father replied.

"Well, then, I have a problem I'd like to have you solve. There were three frogs sitting on a log—a bullfrog, a tree frog and a toad frog. The bullfrog decided to jump off. How many were there left?"

The father smiled. "Why, that's an easy one. Two frogs were left."

"And that's where you are all wrong!" exclaimed the boy, grinning. "Three frogs were left, because the bullfrog only decided to jump off. He didn't jump."

Then the lawyer impressed upon his audience that a person who would win success must act promptly on his decisions.

The Cameron County Club will be formally opened the first week in August according to announcement by Irvin Clary, secretary.

The Country Club, one of the finest in central Texas, is located about one mile north of the city on about 100 acres of land and has a nine hole golf course. The new club house is located on a promontory overlooking a beautiful lake and a part of the golf course.

The lake has been enlarged and on the dam a drive way has been built. It is well stocked with fish and is supported by springs that gush from a nearby hill.

Recently the American Legion held a district meeting at the club, being the first meeting to be held at the club house.

The new building is modern in every way with basement, shower baths and all conveniences. A large room on the upper floor is laid with maple flooring for dancing and is enclosed with French doors to enhance its beauty. An adjoining room to provide space for separate entertainment is also enclosed with French doors and floored with maple. A porch to be screened in runs the full length of the club house and will be excellent for entertainment purposes. A fire place will provide heat in the winter months.

Quarters for the care taker have been built in the second story.

Members of the club, more than 80, will be delighted with the announcement of its completion. Royce P. Jeter who took a leading part in the organization of the club, is chairman of the board of directors.

BUILDING DAM ON

RIVER TO KEEP UP

WATER SUPPLY HERE.

The water supply at Cameron is getting low due to the demands made on Little River by pumping stations for irrigation purposes and for shipment to surrounding towns. The Cameron Water, Power & Light Company this week are completing a small dam on the river to raise the water to a sufficient height to make pumping easy. Water in car lots is being shipped to Burlington and Ben Arnold north of Cameron and there used by the citizens and sold to the farmers for drinking purposes. It is said the water is sold at a rate of 25 cents for two barrels. While the river is still flowing precautions are to be taken to conserve the supply.

Complex and Varied

Is the Human Soul!

I never cease to admire the indelibility of human nature. It does not wear off. Whatever they may do, men are and remain what they are. They may deceive themselves; they may deceive others, especially the short-sighted ones, those who cannot look from the proper distance. Thus the surface of the sea seems quite dark when you are very near to it, but if you climb into the crow's nest you will see how clear the water is, and the higher you go the deeper you see. George Norton writes, as quoted from "Transparency," in Scribner's Magazine.

If you have learned to contemplate life in its true perspective, how transparent, how beautiful it becomes. This transparency is, indeed, the very spice of life. Among the many splendors of nature, what could be more impressive, more delightful than the infinite variety of the men and women who pass, mix and play before our eyes? Birds are pretty enough, and there seems to be no end to the beauty and fantasy of their plumage, but what of women! what of men! Can there be anything under the sun more complex, more varied, more full of problems and enigmas of all kinds than the soul of man? The mystery seems bottomless, for even if we were to understand each soul in itself, we would still but be at its threshold. For we would not yet know how each of these souls would react upon the others. Each possible combination, each pair of souls opens a new vista of endless secrecy.

The Eyes of Evil

By BAYARD D. YORK

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

BACK in town, the eighteen-mile drive to Clayton Beach had seemed like a simple venture. And even now, as the world darkened ominously beneath the thickening clouds and the deserted summer cottages rose in dreary lines before her, Marion Hamilton entertained no thought of turning back.

"I know just where I left that letter," she thought. "I'll run up and get it—and in five minutes be on my way home again."

The letter had been tossed into the top drawer of her dresser and forgotten. This afternoon she had remembered its existence; and acting impulsively, had set out in her coupe. Without the letter, her father faced trial and possible conviction as a thief; in it, if she remembered the contents correctly, he possessed a convincing alibi.

As she slipped the key into the lock she glanced over her shoulder. Surely this sullen gray-green monster was not the ocean whose sparkling summer moods she loved so much! She entered, and, with swift glances to either side, hurried up the stairs to the door of her room.

It was evident that the room had been thoroughly ransacked. She rushed to the dresser. Intuition told her at once what a careful search confirmed—the letter was gone!

She rushed from the room—and stopped with staring eyes. From around a corner of the hallway appeared a man's head, the face unshaven, the eyes gleaming from the gloom. With a smothered cry Marion turned and ran down the stairs, caught her heel and fell. She arose with a sickening sense of pain. At the first step her left ankle crumpled under her; the room whirled away into blackness, and she slipped limply to the floor.

Consciousness returned slowly; but as she finally regained a moderate degree of clearness of mind she noted that a wet towel was being held against her forehead and that a man stood beside her. He was not the one whose face she had seen upstairs—but he impressed her no less unpleasantly. His young face bore the prints of dissipation and a steely light gleamed in his somewhat shifty eyes.

She rose to her feet.

"Will you help me to my car—" she began.

The young man laughed shortly.

"Bad night for traveling," he suggested. "You'll stay here."

"What are you doing here?" she demanded.

"About a year ago your father tried to put Sandy Lane behind the bars," he said. "Your father was warned, but he persisted. That was a mistake. Your father knows now—he's going to pay the penalty."

"You are Sandy Lane," she murmured involuntarily.

"That doesn't matter," he remarked.

"You are Arthur Hamilton's daughter—that's what counts. I guess—"

Marion heard no more. At that instant she saw again the man with the unshaven face. He was moving slowly down the stairs.

Fascination and terror held her motionless.

Then one of the stairs creaked. The young man whirled with the speed of lightning. The big man rushed past her.

The short struggle was titanic. Once their bodies struck the table at Marion's side and the table crumpled like a thing of cardboard. She moved back, each step on her sprained ankle hurting cruelly.

And suddenly she realized that she had an opportunity to be something more than an idle onlooker. The young man was on his back now, still struggling violently, but very evidently losing the fight. But Marion could see what the bigger man had failed to notice—that a revolver had fallen to the floor from somewhere and that the young man's hand was groping for it.

And then she sprang forward and snatched the revolver away. Instinctively she had decided that of the two she would rather throw herself on the mercy of the older man.

The latter rose presently and yanked the other man to a sitting position and then up into a chair.

"The end of the trail, Sandy," he entered with a quiet ring of triumph in his voice. "It's been a long trip—but we've arrived at last."

He turned—to find himself covered with the weapon which Marion held.

A sudden smile broke over his face. "Don't blame you," he remarked—and Marion was surprised at the quality of gentleness in his tone. "I must look like a ruffian—though I feel like a very efficient and highly pleased police officer."

Suddenly she realized that those evil eyes were directed upon her with all the vengeance of the handcuffed man's soul behind them.

"Wait till I get out," he muttered. "It'll be some wait," the officer interposed. "You'll do time for the job you tried to frame up against Mr. Hamilton. But there's worse than that coming to you, Sandy Lane."

Giving Everybody a Square Deal On Electric Light and Power Rates

One of the greatest problems with which the management of the electric light and power companies as well as the public service commissions of the various states are most earnestly striving to solve is that of fixing rates upon the basis of which charges made for electric light and power service shall be equitable to all classes of consumers and to the company rendering the service.

It is evident that a really fair charge to each individual customer would be one equal to the actual cost of rendering and maintaining the service respectively supplied, plus fair interest on the investment required to render that service.

That is the ideal which in practice the electric light and power companies and the public service commissions are striving to reach. But the difficulty hinges on the fact that the investment and operating costs to render the service demanded are not entirely proportionate to the amount of electricity supplied.

Here are the reasons why:

It will be seen from the foregoing that the making of just rates for every electric light and power user is a difficult problem. The rates that are in force today are the result of sincere efforts on the part of the electric light and power companies and the regulatory bodies empowered by government, to reconcile many factors for the one purpose of assuring to the public the best service on a sound basis.

"The dominating fundamental principle of rate charging in the United States—approved by our State Regulating Commissions—is to make each group of consumers self-sustaining and pay for the cost of the service they are receiving. That is, not to carry one group at the expense of some other group."

1. The cost of meter reading, accounting, billing, collections and other items of overhead and service are practically identical in the service of customers whose consumption of electricity widely differs.

2. The difference between production, transmission, distribution and meter installation costs involved in giving service to large and small users is usually less in proportion than the difference between the amounts of electric energy respectively supplied.

3. The costs named in item 2 are further modified by the degree in which the consumer maintains a continuous demand for a uniform amount of electricity, and by the time of day at which the consumer's use of electricity is greatest.

For instance, suppose a customer has his own power plant but wants to make an arrangement whereby, if his own plant breaks down, he can immediately switch his lights and motors on the electric light and power company's system. Obviously the electric company has to provide all equipment necessary to carry that load if or when it comes. Consequently a charge is made for this "stand-by service"—even though the plant capacity held available is never actually used in that particular customer's service. It is self-evident that such a charge is just. On the same principle this stand-by factor enters into the service of customers who use electricity supplied by the electric light and power company in large volume during short periods but in relatively small volume the greater part of the time. Since the electric company must invest in equipment of sufficient capacity to accommodate the customer's greatest demand it is necessary to apply a stand-by charge to the customer's bill to help carry this investment when the customer's demand for electricity falls off. It is this stand-by principle when so applied that is meant by the item of "demand" often referred to in electric light and power rate schedules.

As for the variation in charges arising from the time of day at which a given customer's greatest demand occurs, it is apparent that during certain hours of the twenty-four less energy will be normally required for electric light or power. Therefore, conforming to the law of supply and demand, a lower rate is justified during such hours in order to keep invested capital productively employed and to compensate the customer for using the service at an unpopular time.

4. Certain classes of electric equipment used by many electric light and power customers have inherent characteristics which demand from the electric light and power system to which they are connected an amount of generating and transmission capacity exceeding that required by other electric appliances using a similar amount of power. If the electric company supplies energy to the first class of appliances at the same rate as to the second class it will be seen that the first class is tying up a disproportionate part of the company's service facilities without returning adequate compensation. Consequently some companies provide for such cases by introducing in their rate schedules a "power-factor" clause which equitably discriminates between the two classes of service. Electric light and power companies are also increasingly active in preventing the need of applying such a clause to their rates, by pointing out to the customer the advantage to himself of using equipment having desirable power-factor characteristics.

INDEPENDENCE OF THE FINANCIAL KIND

By WILLIAM E. KNOX
President, American Bankers Association.

The principle upon which America was founded was independence. The primary duty of the pioneers of this country was to interpret independence in its political sense, but independence today has another special significance in its financial sense. The ability to apply the primary principles of personal economics, to use intelligently that common thing we call "a pay check," has as much to do with individual independence as any other force in life.

The greatest problem of independence of the average man or woman is how to get out of what they earn a good living and a reasonable degree of financial comforts in old age. We cannot maintain a high standard of national life without an intelligent management of the financial matters that constantly confront the average individual and family. In the accumulation of capital in the hands of the masses lies the hope of the true independence of a nation's people. The chief concern of wage earners is to get a reasonable degree of financial independence out of what they actually earn.

This question of how to attain personal financial independence has not been worked out on the principle of individual responsibility. The most important social needs today are a course of instruction in public education to give young people a practical notion of how to start life on a sound economic basis; and, secondly, a broad co-operative plan in American industry whereby men and women shall be helped to work out a personal financial program that will guide them toward a definite goal of financial independence. There ought to be a way for a man, for every dollar put aside each week now, to get back four or five dollars a week forty or fifty years later, regardless of where he works.

The present policy in American industry of helping employees is based on the assumption that they will ultimately become dependent. Old age pensions and other forms of charitable compensation are to be commended in lieu of a practical alternative, but in principle they are wrong and contrary to the purposes of democracy. What we want is an organized plan that will direct working people toward independence. No system can claim complete success that does not contemplate the financial independence of every employee, according to his ability to earn. It can be shown that American employees, with reasonable prudence on their own part, can reach independence while earning a fair degree of money. They are still working.

There must be injected into our industrial policy an additional economic element of mutual benefit and permanent value to both labor and capital, concerned not alone with the amount of wages and profits that are earned but with how these earnings shall be used. I am arguing for an industrial savings policy based upon the principle of independence. I am arguing for a new basis of co-operation in industry, for the elimination of poverty, and for a practical demonstration of economic democracy.

When public education teaches school students how to manage their personal affairs intelligently, and when the heads of firms make it a requirement that every young man and young woman who accepts a position shall be working toward a definite goal in saving money, then we will attack economic illiteracy at the source and begin to save men from the tragedy of financial dependency.

WHERE MONEY IS A NUISANCE

Americans have reason to be thankful for their simple and reliable money. The complications of the Chinese currency are endless. China possesses 72 different money values. As to the money of account, the Kaikuan Tael, familiar in connection with the customs, the Hankow, Kuantung, Esaoing, Tookwai and others, each differ by varying percentages of weight from the "liang," or Chinese ounce of silver. If a traveler from Shanghai were to make an extended tour into the interior, passing through the districts where a manifold variety of coins circulate, the constant exchange from one weight or coin to another would dissipate a very large part of his capital.

An experienced traveler has been known to take scales with him, and still his weights and the purity of his silver were subjected to dispute in different provinces. At coast ports, Mexican, Yuan, Dragon, Hong-Kong and Hankow dollars are all current, each having its own defined exchange value in the native market, while in the interior the added intricacies of dealing with cents and copper cash are so great that it is astonishing how business can be carried on without endless disputes and a considerable handicap to trade.

CONFIDENCE PREVAILS DESPITE CROP REPORT

NO PROSPECTS FOR CROPS BUT MILAM COUNTY WILL GO ON JUST THE SAME.

While conditions in Milam county are such as to give little hope to the farming interests for a cotton crop a feeling of security prevails among the people because of the general healthy condition of the county and the disposition on the part of the banks to assist in financing the farmers.

At the present time demands are being made for money to pay for feed for stock on the farms. In most instances farmers have shipped their livestock to sections of the state where rains have fallen and grass is good.

Merchants expect a decline in business but are prepared to take care of their customers for any reasonable demand for goods. Generally the policy is to economize. The sale of automobiles has been restricted to a bare minimum but all other lines of industry seem to be getting a reasonably good share of business.

In 1924 the county produced about 60,000 bales of cotton. Estimates of the 1925 crop place the figure at about 5000 bales or a little over. The crop this year will bring less than a million dollars as compared with about six million dollars in 1924 thus taking from the channels of trade all of the money necessary to insure payment of debts but sufficient will be made to tide the farmers over with the aid of the banks.

All corn and feed crops are a failure. The drought has persisted for more than sixteen months but hope is held out that rain will come in time to save a portion of the cotton crop and to insure planting of fall feed crops.

Stories of distress and suffering appearing in the daily press have been smiled at by the people in central Texas although conditions are not normal. Perhaps the most serious situation at this time is the prospect of a depleted water supply, the river being at its lowest stage in a number of years.

RAILROAD WORKER IS FOUND INJURED.

Henry Hairston, car repair man for the Santa Fe Railroad was found at an early hour this morning on the tracks of the road in the switch yards at Cameron in an unconscious condition.

The sheriff was called to the scene and information indicates the man was slugged with a blunt instrument. His shoes and a portion of his clothing were found near the scene.

Hairston is 50 years old and is married. He was taken to the railroad hospital in Temple where late this afternoon his condition was reported serious.

His head was cut open and he had a bad cut across the face. The officers believe he was slugged and robbed.

TO BUILD HOME FOR NURSES AT HOSPITAL.

Plans have been announced here for the construction of a home for nurses at the Cameron Hospital. Dr. W. R. The Cameron Hospital is one of the largest in this section of the state.

A TRIBUTE TO BILLIE HILL.

It was Tuesday—quiet were the minds of tragedy and quite was the day until the news wave spread its oscillation to every ear. Billie is killed. Everyone was shocked beyond realization. A test has been with us in friendship and oh, what a pal he was. He was not a denying pal but one of boldness, cheerfulness, and of unselfishness. He had his faults, but everyone has faults. Like the sun hidden behind the horizon are the smiles of a dear friend, hidden in death unexpectedly, shockingly, yes beyond realization. On the impulse, only the obscurity of the living smiles that has always been but now is not. His smiles were powerful, molecules tomised with wonderful characteristics that molded a man. Yes, one that we miss much and one the world will miss. Gone is a true friend to a world where sorrow is turned to sunshine. His life was in season with days of sunshine and days of darkness when showers of trouble some times came when the banks of anger and evil ran together and swelled the stream of trouble with blood.

Back to Mother Earth, in dust goes the lifeless body of Billie, who we loved so well. A fair flower has been crushed but in yonder Haven of rest it will bloom, still for the blessed hands who planted it here.

Billie, a boy we loved has left us, his voice we loved is still, a place left vacant in his home which never can be filled. God in his wisdom has recalled the boon his love has given and though his body slumbers here, his soul is safe in Heaven.

One who loved him.

INDIGESTION

Black-Draught Brings Relief for Tight, Bloating Feeling.

"I had indigestion," says Mr. W. B. Bouknight, of Ballentine, S. C. "Working out, I got in the habit of eating fast, for which I soon paid by having a tight, bloated feeling after meals. This made me very uncomfortable."

"I would feel stupid and drowsy, didn't feel like working. I was told it was indigestion. Some one recommended Black-Draught and I took it after meals. I soon could eat anything any time."

"I use it for colds and biliousness and it will knock out a cold and carry away the bile better and quicker than any liver medicine I have ever found."

Eating too fast, too much, or faulty chewing of your food, often causes discomfort after meals. A pinch of Black-Draught, washed down with a swallow of water, will help to bring prompt relief.

Black-Draught gently helps the over-taxed organs to perform their regular functions, in such cases, ridding the system of poisons that might accumulate.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON A NARROW ESCAPE

"Oh, Aunt, I just have to talk to you," said Maud, bursting in on Aunt Emmy. "Those bonds Tom's father gave us for a wedding present have matured and Tom has the money. A man is trying to get Tom to invest in a radio company. I want your opinion on it."

"Don't hurry; tell me everything you can remember," said Aunt Emmy.

"Well, Tom didn't seem enthusiastic. Then Mr. Brown, the salesman, said that if he bought stock in his company, and wanted his money at any time, the company would buy back his stock."

"Are you sure he said that?" interrupted Aunt Emmy. "That is a claim that is not made by people connected with dependable investment houses. Unless you have an agreement with the company clearly stating that it will repurchase its stock, signed by one of its officers, you would have great difficulty in getting the company to buy back your stock. A company cannot be compelled to repurchase its own stock. Do you know who Mr. Brown is?"

"No," replied Maud. "Neither does Tom, but he seems awfully nice and Tom liked him right from the start. He is good looking, well dressed, and has beautiful manners."

Aunt Emmy sniffed. "Did he offer to sell you preferred stock on which dividends are guaranteed?"

"Why, how did you know, Aunt?" exclaimed Maud. "That is exactly what he did."

"I thought so," said Aunt Emmy. "Reliable stock salesmen don't promise that a company will repurchase its stock, nor do they promise guaranteed dividends. Unless a company operates profitably, it cannot pay honest dividends of any sort, guaranteed or otherwise. You can see how foolish it is to believe that you can get dividends just because some one says they are guaranteed. The only guarantee in the world for dividends is the successful operation of a company. Guaranteed dividends is a glib phrase used by unscrupulous persons to get money from unthinking ones. A while back the country was flooded with fake oil stock. Now dishonest promoters are trying radio stock."

"What shall I do?" cried Maud. "Tom is with Mr. Brown now at the store to buy the stock with the bond money."

"You just go to the phone and call Tom," said Aunt Emmy. "Ask him and Mr. Brown to meet you at the bank at ten o'clock. Tell him not to buy the stock until you talk with him again. Half the money is yours. Then call the bank and make an appointment with the vice president to discuss an investment."

About noon Aunt Emmy's telephone rang. It was Maud. "The queerest thing happened, Aunt," she said. "Mr. Brown agreed to meet us at the bank at ten o'clock. Tom and I waited until eleven and he never showed up. Then Tom told the vice president about it and he said we had a lucky escape. Only last week the bank looked up the company Mr. Brown represented and it is absolutely no good!"—A. B. Aymes.

TO MAKE FARMING YIELD BETTER RETURNS

The outstanding possibilities of co-operative marketing are more largely along the lines of standardizing and improving production, eliminating excess varieties, standardizing and improving grade and pack, stabilizing production, regulating flow to market, improving distribution as between markets, developing new markets, collective bargaining, betterment of financing, correcting trade abuses, and representing producers before legislative and administrative bodies, says H. E. Erdman, associate professor in California College of Agriculture. All of these should, of course, result in higher net returns, he says, adding:

"If I were to list the limitations I should put them about as follows:

"1. Co-operation cannot fix prices that are out of line with supply and demand conditions.

"2. Co-operation cannot eliminate the middleman. It can, and does, of course, establish the farmers' own agencies to take the places of private agencies and often puts one co-operative agency where several dealers formerly operated.

"3. Co-operation cannot reduce costs greatly except in so far as an increase in scale of operations makes for lower costs. Some of the gains of large scale operation, however, are dissipated because of tendencies toward extravagance.

"4. Co-operatives will not run alone. Constant attention is required on the part of the membership because 'what is everybody's business is nobody's business.'

"5. Co-operation does not permit the farmer to hold his products for a higher price without also compelling him to assume the risks of getting a lower price.

"6. The outsider often gets as much of the benefit of co-operative marketing as does the member, and in some cases gets more because he does not have to bear his share of certain development expenses. This is a decided handicap to co-operation."

REV. B. B. BLAYLOCK IS HONOR GUEST AT Y's MEN'S LUNCHEON.

Rev. B. B. Blaylock, pastor of Memorial Baptist church, who is leaving soon for Dallas to take up work with the state board of mission of the Baptist church, was the principal speaker at the Y's Men's Luncheon club yesterday. As guest of honor, he was given an unanimous vote of appreciation of his work in Temple and of good wishes for his future success and for "all of the good things" that may come. J. C. Baker was toastmaster and President R. R. Curtis presided.

Rev. Blaylock spoke only briefly, declaring that he has enjoyed his work in Temple and that he regrets leaving here. "There is no local reason for my leaving and there is no town in which I would rather live," he said. "I just feel that the evangelistic field is my real work and that I can be of greater service there. Working for the state Baptist and not independently, I hope to be able to accomplish much good; but if I were going to continue work as a pastor I would not want to change."

Special music was given by Dr. T. M. Neal and Noble Hieronymus with banjo duets and by Mrs. Beatrice Doyle Goode who gave several flute solos.—Temple Telegram.

Why the Studebaker is the "One-Profit" Car--

There are more than 60 makes of passenger cars built in the United States, but very few are manufactured complete in the plants of the producers who sell them.

Only 42 build their own motors and one of the 42 is Studebaker.

Out of the 42 which claim to make their own motors many merely machine and assemble the parts made by others. Only 14 out of 42 make the iron castings, stampings and forgings which go into their motors—and one of the 14 is Studebaker.

Only 5 make all their own bodies and one of the 5 is Studebaker.

Only 3 make all their own springs, steering gear differentials, gear sets, and clutches—one of the 3 is Studebaker.

Only 2 make all their own motors, bodies, clutches, springs, axels, gear sets, differentials and steering gear. One of these two is Studebaker and the other is Ford.

Compare the Quality and performance of Studebaker with any other make of car.

BUILDING A COMMUNITY

Means Conservation of Its Resources.

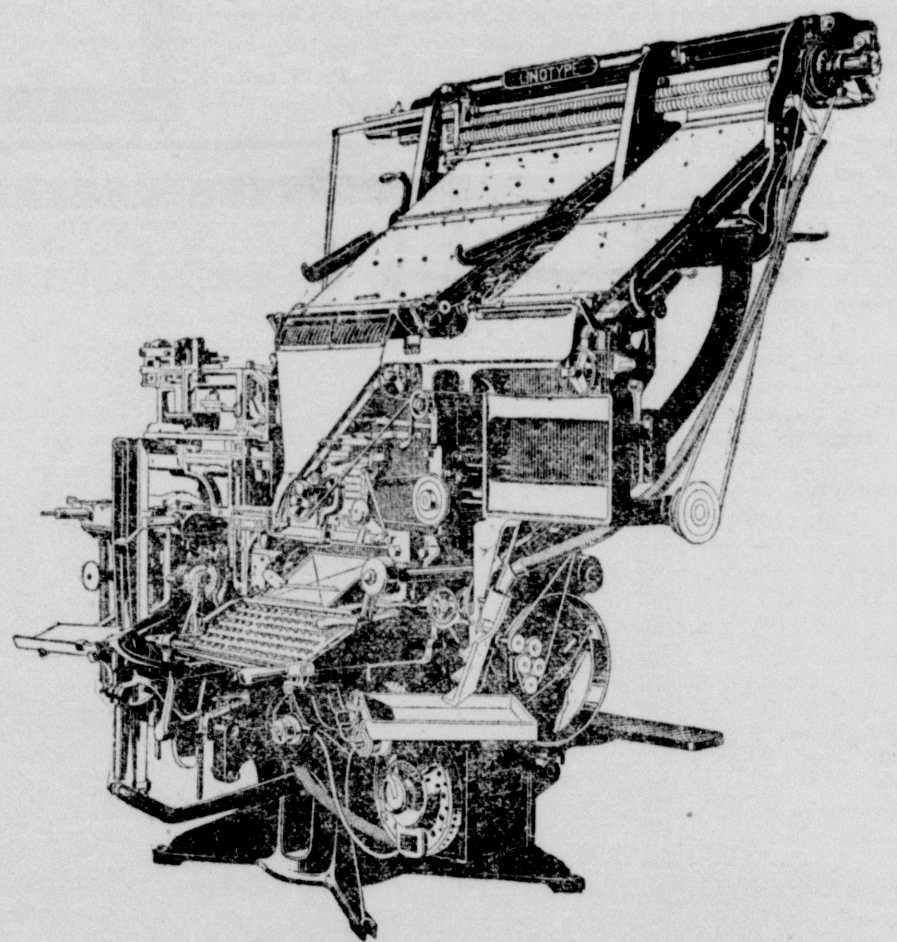

The material welfare of the community in which we live depends upon the conservation of its resources, and to conserve and protect these resources they must be favored against like resources that contribute nothing to the progress of the community

This policy reduced to simple language means "Patronize Home Industry." The newspaper because of its peculiar mission occupies a most commanding position in advancing the thought of home patronage as well as moulding industrial policy for the community.

Newspapers Lead Fight

The Newspaper has never been found wanting when weighed in the balances where loyalty to home industry is at stake. The Newspaper is the mouth piece of the community. It is the outpost of expansion; fights the battle of the community and asks little in return. It has been content with its mission and only in recent years has its potential industrial value quickened the profession to claim its rights and to foster its independence not to the exclusion of its indispensable service to the community, but to safeguard its financial interests and net earning power to make it a worthwhile asset to the community.
